College Games
LITTLE ROCK, Ark. —(AP)—Unbeaten Arkansas Tech runs up against the Hendrix Warriors at Conway next Friday and the sledging looks a great deal tougher for the Wonder Boys from Russellville than it did a week ago.

For one thing the contest, one of three on the state's collegiate program, will be played on the Warrior gridiron and for another the Warriors trotted out a vastly improved team against Arkansas State last week.

The Wonder Boys go into the game with a record of four victories while Hendrix can claim only the 20-0 conquest of State against three earlier setbacks.

Arkadelphia will be the locale of the other two grid meetings.

The defending champion Arkansas Teacher Bears, undefeated this year against state competition, will play Henderson Teachers' Reddies, lose their last three times out, in a homecoming tilt to be played in the afternoon.

Under the lights, Ouchita's Tigers will have it out with Cumberland University.

Arkansas State and Arkansas A and M rest up this week for engagements on November 4. State will take on Union University at Jonesboro on that date while the Monticello Bollweevils are playing the Missouri Miners at Rolla.

Idle Talk, Gossip at Beauty Shops Scored

LITTLE ROCK —(AP)—Dr. Max Strang of Dallas, Texas told several hundred delegates to the Arkansas Hairdressers and Cosmetologists Association's fourth annual convention Sunday night that idle chatter and cheap gossip have no place in successful beauty shop operation.

Describing a "charming and attractive personality" as the greatest asset of a beautician, he said that "development of the body, the mind and the spirit to the fullest extent goes to make up a charming personality."

He said operators should avoid slang and train themselves to carry on an intelligent conversation on any of a variety of subjects. He asserted a modern beautician "must know the difference between a forward pass and a two base hit."

W. Zann, president of the Little Rock unit of the state organization, said approximately 500 had registered Sunday night. Business session will start Monday with adjournment slated Tuesday.

Alien on Jury No Bar to Sentence

Breed Loses Appeal In Arson Case at Ashdown

LITTLE ROCK —(AP)—The Arkansas Supreme Court held Monday that the presence of an alien on a murder trial jury not form sufficient basis to set aside a death sentence.

The ruling came in the court's affirmation of a Pulaski circuit court decree sentencing James Charles, Little Rock negro, to death in connection with the hammer-slaying of Fred Angles, 40-year-old truck producer dealer, last February 17.

Charles appeal was based on the contention that Robert Andrews, member of the trial jury, was a subject of Great Britain. This information was presented to the lower court in a supplemental motion for a new trial which Judge Gus Fulk denied.

Little River circuit court was upheld in its one-year sentence of Woodard Breed, Hope, on conviction of arson in connection with the burning of an hotel at Ashdown.

The supreme court reversed and dismissed a $10,000 personal injury awarded by Clark circuit court against Temple Cotton Oil company to Jack Brown.

Brown alleged he was injured seriously when he slipped and fell while repairing an engine at the company's plant at Fulton, Hempstead county, in October, 1937.

The opinion held that the lower court erred in not instructing the jury that Brown suffered no substantial injuries and that no negligence on the part of the oil company was shown.

Local Negro Dies of Bullet Wound

Otha Frierson Succumbs
In Hospital—Clarence
Noble Is Held

Otha Frierson, 25-year-old Hope negro, died in Josephine hospital late Saturday of a bullet wound in the abdomen.

Police arrested Clarence Noble, about 30 negro filling station employee, for the shooting. Noble is held in the county jail at Washington.

The shooting occurred about 6 o'clock last Thursday afternoon on South Laurel street.

Frierson was shot once with a .38 calibre pistol. The bullet punctured the intestines a number of times. Police said the shooting was the climax of a quarrel between the two negroes over a negro woman.

Noble surrendered to officers soon after the shooting.

The dead negro was the operator of the Black Diamond cafe on South Laurel.

Men and Music
The musical instruments these men play are almost as famous as the musicians themselves. Can you identify each?

1. Benny Goodman plays this long, tubular wind instrument. It is usually made of wood, sometimes of metal.

2. Orpheus played this classic stringed instrument to charm Pluto and bring his wife back from Hades in ancient Greek mythology.

3. The soft tones of this jazz-age instrument made Guy Lombardo's style of music famous, but also anger the neighbors.

4. A former president of Poland and one of the Marx brothers play this stringed instrument.

5. A fellow named Pete gained renown playing this instrument, and it is now the favorite of musicians who must take long marches.

A Thought

The Delphic oracle said I was the wisest of all the Greeks, know that I know nothing—Socrates.

Fire broke out in the Williams Roofing company plant at Waterloo, Nevada county, at 10:45 o'clock last Thursday morning, and when these Hope Star photographs were made at 12:30 the factory was on its way to complete destruction. Owned by J. M. Williams, Joe Martin and W. E. Ducker, with executive offices at Little Rock, the Williams company stands a loss of probably $200,000, with $20,000 insurance. Mr. Ducker told the Star over the telephone from Little Rock Monday afternoon. Mr. Ducker said no decision had been reached on the question of rebuilding at Waterloo. The plant employed 75 men, with an annual payroll of $100,000 much of which was spent at Prescott and Hope.

TOP PHOTO—This shows the warehouse and $60,000 worth of finished roofing stored in it going up in flames. In the background is the Berry Asphalt company plant, Williams' neighbor, which was barely saved from destruction.

BOTTOM PHOTO—A closeup view of the burning main plant. In the center is the main press, recently installed at a cost of about $10,000. The fire started in the saturation tank, where the composition-paper for roofing is impregnated with asphalt. Static electricity, a common fault in all paper, is believed to have set fire to the tank, the flames spreading swiftly throughout the plant.

30-Cents-an-Hour Pay Takes Effect

Work Week Drops From 44 to 42 Hours Effective
Tuesday

Wage increases for 17,100 workers in Arkansas go into effect at midnight Monday, according to estimates issued by the Wage and Hour Division, U. S. Department of Labor.

The minimum wage under the Fair Labor Standards Act increases from 25 to 30 cents an hour, with higher increases established by action of Industry Committees, and approved by the Administrator, for the hosiery and textile industries.

An estimated total of 20,500 workers in Arkansas will have their hours reduced from 44 to 42 per week, or will receive overtime pay at the rate of time and one-half the regular wage-rate for hours worked in excess of that number.

These Arkansas workers are part of an estimated 630,000 in the nation who get wage increases and 2,380 now working more than 42 hours, whose standard work-week will be reduced to that figure. Time worked in excess of the new workweek must be paid for at the rate of time and one-half the regular wage.

Revised estimates of all workers covered by the act indicate that with increased employment over last year, a total of more than 12,600,000 are entitled to its benefits. Of these, 66,600 are in Arkansas.

The largest number of the Arkansas workers to receive wage increases are employed in manufacturing, wholesale trade, and motor carrier industries. These three groups account for 90 per cent of all those in the country receiving less than 30 cents an hour, or working more than 42 hours weekly.

Under provisions of the Act which become effective Tuesday, a worker now employed at the minimum rate for a 40-hour week will automatically

Earl Browder Is Indicted, Starting Roudup U. S. Reds

Communist Leader Charged With Using False
Passport

TESTIFIED TO DIES

Browder Admitted Traveling in Europe Under False Identity

NEW YORK —(AP)—Earl Browder, secretary of the Communist party of the United States, was indicted by a federal grand jury Monday on a charge of false application for a passport.

Browder was taken into custody immediately and arraigned before Federal Judge William Bondy. He pleaded innocent, and was held in $10,000 bail. No date has been set for his hearing.

The Communist leader testified September 6 before the Dies committee that he had traveled in Europe within the last two years on a passport bearing a fictitious name.

A Roundup of Reds

NEW YORK —(AP)—The federal Department of Justice and State Sunday closed in on Communists and Communist organizations suspected of using forged passports and intensified an investigation of foreign spies.

The records of at least one organization have been subpoenaed; officials declined comment on reports that raids had been carried out and prisoners taken. Communist news sources were unable to reach Communist party officials by telephone for hours Sunday night for information.

The Department of Justice in Washington announced that is "expects some decisive action in a few hours" on an acknowledgment by Earl Browder, general secretary of the Communist party, that he had used a falsified passport. Browder admitted this in testimony before the Dies committee.

The undercover inquiry came to the surface Sunday with disclosure that a subpoena was served last Friday on the records of World Tourists Inc., whose treasurer is Alexander Trachtenberg, member of the Communist party governing committee.

The investigation is a sequel to the conviction last May 2 of three men on charges of conspiracy in obtaining 16 faked passports for Mr. and Mrs. Donald Robinson, also known under the name of Adolph Arnold Rubens. The Robinsons were accused in the proceedings of being spies for a foreign government. They had been imprisoned in Moscow.

The three men whose conviction led to the present investigation were Aaron Shafin, former clerk in the Egyptian consulate here; Edward Blatt, a lawyer and Ossip Garber, commercial photographer.

A guard has been placed over World Tourists Inc., offices in the Flatiron building.

The Tax Picture Is a Moving Picture

Everybody talks about taxes. There are the people who think taxes are just plain too high. There are others who think taxes are too high, but don't see any way to do anything about it. There are those who want taxes still higher, so long as they don't have to pay any themselves (or think they don't). But regardless of which view you happen to hold, there is something going on in the tax field that makes the picture different year by year. Not only the size of the canvas, but the composition of the painting is changing more rapidly than some people realize.

For many years there was no essential change in the way in which taxes were raised. Property taxes, that is, taxes on visible real estate, carried the load. There were always a little drizzle from the tariff, and another little drizzle from "internal revenue" taxes, both small.

Just before the World war, came the income tax. It was small at first and changed the whole picture very little. With the 1929 crash, came the scramble for sales tax ideas. And after that war and the 1929 crash, came the scramble for all sorts of taxes of any kind and of any size the traffic would bear.

The result is that by 1933, the old standby, the property tax, was accounting for only 32 per cent of all taxes, where it had once been the backbone and mainstay of the tax system. That is 9 per cent less than in 1932.

Meanwhile, a new tax, the payroll tax, in only its second year, yielded about 10 per cent of all tax income. In its first year, 1937, the payroll tax produced about $600,000,000, or roughly 5 per cent of all taxes. But in 1938, it yielded $1,500,000,000, just better than 10 per cent of all taxes paid, including federal, state, and local. Its share in purely federal taxation is, of course, far larger.

These estimates are made by the Federation of Tax Administrators, and they show how rapidly the tax picture is changing. Last year, then, taxes were provided in this way: 32 per cent from property taxes, 26 per cent from sales and occupational taxes, 22 per cent from income taxes, and 10 per cent from payroll taxes, the remainder scattering. Of the sales and occupational group, including general sales, liquor, tobacco, gasoline, and various stamp taxes, gasoline led with $381,000,000, and liquor was next with $338,000,000.

Lumping together the property and income taxes, you have 54 per cent levied against the consumer as such, including the payroll taxes, which are a direct and immediate loss to purchasing power, although restored to that use when paid out in various benefits.

Taxation is a science. It is necessary not only to raise the money, but to raise it from sources which interfere as little as possible with the production-consumption machine. That is why the rapid shift in the tax picture is so important.

SERIAL STORY

JOAN OF ARKANSAS BY JERRY BRONDFIELD

COPYRIGHT, 1939, NEA SERVICE, INC.

YESTERDAY: Kay Granger is more friendly to Dan after the homecoming queen election. Keith's fraternity plans a hayride and Joan is anxious to go. But Keith is ordered on a studying trip. He urges Dan to take Joan. "Why not?" Webber asks.

CHAPTER XI

INSTEAD of phoning, Keith called for Joan at the library and took her home.

"Take a deep breath and hold on tight," he said. "You're going on that hayride after all."

"Do you mean you're not?"

"You're going, but not with me," he interrupted.

"Say—what's this all about?"

"Dan Webber is going to pinch hit for me."

An incredulous look spread over her face, but before she could say anything Keith plunged on. "Honest, you'll enjoy it. And you'll probably discover Dan is the swell egg I've been telling you he is. Now's your chance to discover it."

Then breaking into a grin: "I wouldn't trust you with anyone else."

She didn't convince easily. "Do you mean to tell me old sour-puss himself consented to escort me anywhere but to the guillotine? Impossible! What'd you do—threaten him?"

Keith laughed. "Why, the guy just jumped at the chance."

"Jumped, did he? Why, I'll bet—"

Suddenly she paused, stared into space meditatively.

"Okay," she said, and there was a smile on her face. "Maybe I'll have more fun than I expected."

It was a crisp, moon-drenched, late October night. Perfect for a hayride. They creaked up Pine Ridge road in two wagons, 10 couples in each.

Someone in the first wagon had a portable victrola and a dozen swing records. Dan and Joan were in the second wagon, up front, just behind the driver. An arm's length away, Tommy Peters fished for some music on a portable radio he had borrowed.

The wagons bumped along over the dirt road, but it was comfortable in the deep, warm hay.

"Mind if I sort of rest my head on your shoulder?" Joan asked without looking up.

"A pleasure and an honor," Dan assured her, and she tossed some hay in his face with a backward flip of her hand.

"Don't be so sarcastically galling."

"Well, after all, I'm only a pinch-hitter, you know."

"Sure—but as far as I know a pinch-hitter always does his best to make a hit."

She happened to look at the stars as she spoke and caught the expression that moved fleetingly across his face.

"Right?" she asked.

"After a fashion, I guess."

Joan smiled in the darkness. She wondered just how far she could draw him out. "Okay, skip it. But look—how about telling me a little about yourself. What makes you tick, and all that sort of stuff."

"Really interested?"

"Wouldn't ask if I weren't."

He laughed and she settled back on his shoulder. It was broad and warm with a certain solidness about it that didn't come from his bulk alone.

HE leaned back and told her of his home in a small downstate town. He told her of his kid sister still in high school, and of the time he fell out of the apple tree and broke his wrist. He told her he had a tough time deciding between Tech and an eastern school and finally picked Tech because of its ceramic engineering school.

"How'd you happen to get interested in that stuff, anyway?" she asked.

"First of all, don't refer to it as 'stuff.' If you don't mind, that is."

"I worked in a small pottery plant in our town for a couple of summers and got to like it."

He stuck a strand of hay between his teeth. "And I'm not just puttering around. I'm just about assured of a job with one of the largest pottery plants in the country when I graduate."

She liked the quiet confidence in his tone. Somehow she knew how he felt. He was preparing for something and would be ready to meet it. There would be no wavering, no indecision. He knew exactly what he wanted to do and was going to do it.

"Where is this plant?"

"Acme Pottery Products, near Pittsburgh."

"Big, eh?"

"Very big."

"Maybe you'll be president of the company some day."

"Maybe I will."

The evenness of his tone startled her. She had spoken half in jest. He had answered with a calm that was almost prophetic.

"You say you're sure of this job?"

"Just about. My old foreman back home recommended me and the Acme personnel manager liked my application. Going to see him in person during the Christmas holidays."

She caught the eager note in his tone. "It must be swell to know exactly where you're headed," she said softly, staring up at the stars again.

HE was silent for a long minute.

"It is. You ought to think about it sometime. Do you good."

She half turned and faced him.

"Meaning—"

"Meaning, take you, for instance. You have so much, and yet sometimes I think you have so little."

He paused.

"Go ahead," she said quickly.

Her eyes in the moonlight almost whirled him, but he managed to continue.

"You just slide through things, taking the path of least resistance. But you can't do that and feel as though you're genuinely satisfied with yourself. Or can you?"

That stung just a little but she didn't resent it. "Dan—you're right about me, but not entirely. I—I'm not really like that. Somehow I've just had a faculty for doing or saying the wrong thing since I've been here."

"And—Dan?"—she placed a hand on his arm—"I—I don't want you to think that. I've given you a chance to show me what you were like. Now you give me a chance."

They grew silent then and for the rest of the ride they merely listened to the music.

Her thoughts raced, but foremost among them was the fact that she didn't want Dan Webber to think she was the unpurposeful creature he thought her to be. There was a time when he might have been right. But those were the days before Tech. He'd find out in time.

Heredity, Toxic Diseases, Injury to Ear Bones May Cause Deafness

First of a series of five articles on hearing, its impairments and their remedies.

The week of Oct. 22 to 29 has been proclaimed National Hearing Week by the President.

It is a period during which physicians and others interested in the cause of hard of hearing will devote themselves to emphasizing the prevalence of deafness and the need of discovering impairment of hearing in children as soon as possible.

The problem of educating and rehabilitating those who have already become hard of hearing will be given special attention. Some can be helped by modern technique in lip reading and others by using a suitable hearing device.

Experts estimate that there are from six to ten million people in the United States afflicted with hardness of hearing. They may be divided, as Dr. Gordon Berry points out, into groups: those that are deaf which means that they may have suffered a marked hearing impairment early in life before they learned to talk, and those who developed impairment of hearing as they grew older.

It is important to find out as soon as possible whether or not a baby can hear. Frequently the nurse is the first to discover the fact that the child has impaired hearing.

A child that does not hear well uses its eyes more than one that does.
He finds no enjoyment in the use of a rattle or in other kinds of noise-making devices, and will not respond to a spoken word unless there is movement associated with the speaking.

There are three important causes of hardness of hearing in infancy: In the case of heredity the child is born deaf. There is apparently a tendency in certain families for the inheritance of a constitutional structure which causes loss of hearing.

Another cause is the development of any severe toxic disease or of any other type of serious poisoning which may paralyze the nerve of hearing.
Such paralysis may be associated with meningitis, scarlet, fever, mumps, syphilis, or occasionally with measles, influenza, or diphtheria.

Excessive doses of quinine, particularly in the case of a sensitive person, may cause some loss of hearing.
A sudden, extremely loud noise or a violent blow on the ear may produce degenerative changes which may result in deafness.

In addition to the infections which may damage the nerves of hearing, there is the possibility of suppuration which destroys the small bones in the middle ear. Once the nerve which enables us to hear is destroyed or seriously damaged by an illness or poisoning, recovery of hearing is unlikely.

The most a specialist can do to preserve the amount of hearing that is left is to utilize the structures that are still intact and to relieve the body of nasal obstructions and other minor infections which may constitute an additional load for the damaged tissue to carry.

New Chesterfield Ad Series Begins

New Interesting Informa- tion About Cigarette Manufacturing

One of the most interesting and compelling series of newspaper advertisement ever to run in behalf of a leading American cigarette has just been released by Chesterfield. Dealer sales that are sure to result will be assisted by colorful store displays and national billboard showings. The first newspaper advertisement will appear during the week of October 23rd, the start of a schedule that continues through December.

Famous personalities from many fields are featured in the series. The sports world is represented by such figures as Grantland Rice and Frank Fuller. Bendis Air Race Champion.
Outstanding Hollywood stars such as Bette Davis, Loretta Young, Evelyn Flynn, and David Niven play a large part in the Chesterfield campaign, while the glamour and beauty of the American girl is typified by Miss Phil Offer who was chosen "Cotton Queen of 1939."

However, the most unusual and striking advertisements in this new Chesterfield series are the three all-text announcements that every smoker will be keenly interested in reading.
The advertisements are entitled "Tobacco opens doors to fields where people live, work and achieve," and "It was hit or miss in grandfather's day," Not only are they fine examples of clear writing, original layout and good typography—they also contain new and interesting information about cigarette manufacture. They bear convincing proof that Chesterfield's leading position among America's cigarettes is due to the highest kind of selling methods. In every way the advertisements in the new series give excellent support to the statement
"Make your next pack Chesterfields
—you can't buy a better cigarette."

Little Sam Houston College Is Too Much for Rice Institute Grid Team

Owls Tumble to Bottom of Football Depths In Losing 9 to 8 Contest to Small Huntsville, Texas, School

DALLAS, Texas — Tumbled to the depths, Rice Institute, the team experts waved to the Southwest conference title in pre-season opinions, again lay a shambles at the bottom of football's crazies upsets.

Not the unbeaten drive of the Texas Aggies, nor the "Red Grange" running of Texas' Jack Crain, but the folding of Rice, Ernie Lain and all was the big news of the Southwest.

The Sam Houston Teachers, a little band from the piney woods of Walker county, dropped in on the Owls Saturday night in Houston, fully prepared for the guillotine. They came away with a 9-8 triumph, the most shocking of all upsets. They were too much for the Owls in the fourth period with a touchdown pass, a field goal and some smart maneuvering that gave the Owls a safety but not victory.

Previously, Rice had let a Vanderbilt game slip through its hands after humbling the Commodores until the last four minutes; dropped a 0-7 decision to Louisiana State after umbling on the goal line and whipped Centenary, 13-0.

So goes Rice on a part it read in 1938, when the critics couldn't figure how they would lose a game but finally started figuring how they could win one.

Next week Rice must start its Southwest conference schedule against Texas at Austin—a Texas team that wasn't supposed to cut any capers but has been as stunning at winning as Rice has at losing. Texas Sophomore Jack Crain is perhaps the finest climax runner in conference history. Saturday he whipped Arkansas, 14-13, with two great runs of 86 and 61 yards, the last with less than a minute to play. He kicked both points.

Meanwhile the Texas Aggies, using brute power, squelched Texas Christian, 20-6. Unbeaten, almost unap-proached, to Aggies chained the Christian offense holding it to 28 yards on the ground. John Kimbrough, Derince Mosier and Bill Consterer ripped TCU to shreds, Consterer going 95 yards for one touchdown through a stubborn but badly crippled Christian bunch.

Next Saturday at College Station the Aggies play a Baylor team that went down before Nebraska, 20-0 Baylor's sophomore star, Jack Wilson, rode the bench most of the way with injuries.

Two of its best backs, Ray Malouf and Preston Johnson, were absent, but Southern Methodist continued on its merry way, shellacking Marquette's Golden Avalanche, 16-0. Not a first down was allowed by the rugged Methodists, looking better every Saturday and looming, along with Texas, as the only real threats to the Aggies.

Next week-end the Methodist rest.
Texas Christian gathers up its winless Frogs and goes to Shreveport to play Centenary, also without a victory, while Arkansas plays Villanova at Philadelphia next Saturday.

IT IS ESTIMATED that there are 1,602,000 tobacco farmers raising tobacco in 20 out of the 48 states. Good tobacco is one of the hardest crops to raise and bring to market, requiring great skill and patience from seed-bed planting to harvesting and cur- ing. The modern tobacco farmer has done well the job of constantly improving the quality of his product.

THE AVERAGE LENGTH of service of the 13,230 people working in the Chesterfield factories, storage houses, leaf-handling and redrying plants is over 10 years. This means that every step in the making of Chesterfields, regardless of how small, is handled by peo- ple who have had 10 years of experience and ability in knowing their jobs.

TRULY TOBACCO OPENS DOORS to fields where people live, work and achieve, and Chesterfield takes pride in its ever increasing part in this great industry that is devoted entirely to the pleasure of the American public.

TO SMOKERS, Chesterfield Cigarettes have always said, and now repeat, that in no other cigarette made can you find the same degree of real mildness and good taste, or the same high quality of properly cured and aged tobaccos. Chesterfield Cigarettes are made with one purpose only . . . to give smokers everywhere the MILD, BETTER-TASTING SMOKING PLEA- SURE they want. You can't buy a better cigarette.

Finns Hope Soviet to Keep the Peace

They Don't Believe Russia Wants War in the North

MOSCOW, Russia.—(AP)—Finnish hopes for a peaceful settlement of negotiations with Soviet Russia rose Sunday on the theory the U. S. S. R. was desirous of friendly neighbors on her northern flank, particularly in view of the failure of talks with Turkey.

The Finnish delegation headed by Dr. Juhani Paasikivi sped toward Moscow by train and was due to arrive at 10:20 a. m. Monday. The Finns were said to be prepared to make some concessions to Russia, possibly with islands in the Gulf of Finland, but were determined not "to give too much away."

Russia having announced her intention of remaining neutral in the European war, observers said it was not likely she would try to push Finland too far and risk having a warring nation on her northern flank.

Speculation on the results of negotiations with Finland shared interest with Russia shortly would send an economic mission to Germany headed by Ivan T. Tevosyan, commissar of shipbuilding.

The Russian mission will examine the question of machinery and manufactured goods to Russia, thus complementing work of the German delegation here.

for consideration by the judges. The crowning of the queens closed the exposition with its financial success assured by clicking turnstiles which easily shattered 1938 attendance records.

The attendance Sunday was 12,071 making a grand total of 87,526 compared to 57,000 last year.

Col. T. H. Barton of El Dorado, president of the show association expressed gratification over the enthusiasm with which the event was received.

Started two years ago by public subscription, the show this year proved an outstanding attraction. Premiums of $12,500 were paid to Arkansas breeders and nearly $8000 in prize money was distributed to rodeo performers during the seven days of the exposition. The gates were opened at 8 a. m. and all livestock entries remained on exhibition until 6 p. m.

M. W. Muldrow, state extensive service animal husbandman, said Sunday night that prices paid Saturday at the auction sale of champion stock exhibited by 4-H club members and Future Farmers of America were "very satisfactory."

He said the exhibitors should feel "extremely fortunate at the prices offered above the market value of the stock," asserting that most sales were at least $250 above the market quotations. He said most of the boys who exhibited were on a production basis and realized a profit from their stock.

To Rush Planes If

France and Britain need in a hurry the fighters, bombers and other craft ordered here to reinforce their defenses against any German aerial "blitzkrieg."

Probably none of the 300 or so planes awaiting delivery is capable of spanning the Atlantic by air, but they could go part of the way. Indications are that some at least will leave the United States under their own power, instead of in crates stowed away in the holds of freighters.

To save the delay involved in shipping planes in knockdown form, they might be conveyed ready for action in a fast British or French aircraft carrier. If a presidential proclamation or neutrality law ruling should bar a belligerent warship on such a mission from American ports, it could sail from Canada, after the planes had been flown across the border.

An even faster and more spectacular method would be to fly the planes several hundred miles at sea to a carrier which could launch them into the air upon nearing Europe and then speed back to this side of the Atlantic for another cargo.

By this means the warplanes might be in France in three or four days. Difficulties with the new 300-mile safety zone around the Americas might be forestalled by keeping the carrier beyond its outer limit but still well within the range of any combat plane.

Or, to minimize the peril of a submarine attack, the planes might be delivered to American, British or French islands in the West Indies, and there either loaded on freighters or on a carrier.

Garner Is Pushing Embargo's Repeal

Vice-President Taking Active Part in Revision Fight

By PRESTON GROVER
WASHINGTON—Vice-President Garner has taken such a firm hold of the Administration's case in the neutrality fight that credit for repeal of the arms embargo likely will go to him if it goes to anybody.

From the night of the first conference at the White House at the beginning of the special session, Garner has been a calming factor in the debate. It is reliably reported that he spoofed at frightened senators who said repeal of the arms embargo would be the first step of this country toward war.

His 30 years and more of experience in Congress make an impressive record. His skill at unravelling legislative situation and inspiring public sentiment gives far more than average weight to his maneuvering.

It is all cloak-room operation. The members just naturally drift into his famous "bureau of education," the vice-president's private room off one corner of the Senate chamber. There he talks frankly, at times bluntly, both with members of the Senate and with certain news men in whom he places considerable confidence. He never is officially quoted, but on the other hand, the numerous quotations attributed to him are more often than not unofficially authorized.

The debate on the neutrality bill was barely a week old when it became known that Garner was advising senators against restrictions on American shipping. Senators objected that to let American ships cruise about the seas would stir up American sentiment for retaliation. Again Garner is credited with the assertion that public sentiment is so solidly against war that Congress never would dare vote for any kind of participation unless sentiment changed radically.

His position on neutrality is right down the same lane with the Administration's. This puts him in the Roosevelt camp almost for the first time since he led the last-minute demand for a compromise on the court bill in 1937.

So quiet is the Garner way of working that it is almost overlooked that he has had a greater hand in the administration than almost any vice-president since Jefferson. He maneuvered for the selection of Joe Byrnes as speaker of the House in the first New Deal congress. He had a guiding hand in the selection of Bankhead as speaker to succeed Byrnes on the latter's death, and in the selection of Representative Rayburn of Texas to succeed Bankhead as majority leader.

On an actual count of noses at those little "big hat" conferences at the President's apartment, by Senator Barkley of Kentucky, the Senate majority leader.

These conferences on legislative strategy, which came Monday of each week during the regular session, have been discontinued during the current special session since only one issue is before the Congress and the five are in harmony on it.

So earnestly is the Vice President working at this business of obtaining an early repeal of the arms embargo that senators have found him weary by the steady dring of personal conferences.

His principal recreation during the early days of the present session was baseball. Almost every afternoon he would spend an hour or so beside his radio when he could not be out at the ball field.

All-Vegetable Laxative Has Important Points

Most people want a laxative to do three things: (1) act punctually, (2) act thoroughly, (3) act gently. Here's one that usually fills all three requirements when the easy directions are followed. It's an all-vegetable product whose principal ingredient has medical recognition as an "intestinal tonic-laxative."

This ingredient enables BLACK-DRAUGHT to impart tone to lazy bowel muscles. And it is the main reason for the punctual, thorough relief from constipation that most often follows next morning after you take BLACK-DRAUGHT. The millions of packages used prove its merit. 25 to 40 doses: 25c.

SMOKERS: SAVE AGAINST THE COST OF THE STATE CIGARETTE TAX
Smokers who live in communities where certain state cigarette taxes are in effect can save the cost of the tax—and, in some instances, more—through smoking Camels. (See panel at right.) When you are a Camel smoker, you get this unique economy—and all the extra enjoyment of the cooler, milder smoking—the fragrance and delicate taste of finer, more costly tobaccos.

Above, "VAN" waiting in the duck blinds for the "zero hour." Explorer, sportsman, scientist, conservationist, author of the authoritative, new "A Book on Duck Shooting," Heilner knows the waterfowl flyways from California to Maine, Alaska to Mexico, and those of Europe too. "VAN" has been a Camel smoker for 18 years.

More pleasure per puff . . . more puffs per pack!

Whatever price you pay per pack, it's important to remember this fact: By burning 25% slower than the average of the 15 other of the largest-selling brands tested—slower than any of them—CAMELS give a smoking plus equal to 5 EXTRA SMOKES PER PACK!

Cigarettes were compared recently... sixteen of the largest-selling brands... under the searching tests of impartial laboratory scientists. Findings were announced as follows:

- 1 CAMELS were found to contain more tobacco by weight than the average for the 15 other of the largest-selling brands.
- 2 Camels burned slower than any other brand tested—25% slower than the average time of the 15 other of the largest-selling brands! By burning 25% slower, on the average, Camels give smokers the equivalent of 5 extra smokes per pack!
- 3 In the same tests, Camels held their ash far longer than the average time for all the other brands.

Don't deny yourself the pleasure of smoking Camels, the quality cigarette every smoker can afford.
